Flemming Reports Draft Call Boost May Come in July

Alfred, Nov. 6 (AP)—Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, director of the Office of Defense Mobilization, says the draft call may be 60,000 men a month next July, more than double the current quota of 23,000 a month.

Flemming said the monthly quota may be hiked to 40,000 to 50,000 men by January or February.

These increases may come, he said, "even though we can reduce the armed forces in 1955."

The predictions were made yesterday at a founders day convocation at Alfred University.

Flemming said the purpose of the increase next year would be to get away from two-year enlistment cycle that made a large quota necessary in July, 1952 and that would also cause the big quota next July.

He said the cycle began in 1950 with heavy two-year enlistments when the Korean war broke out.

Flemming is a native of Kingston, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Flemming.

To Try Two Czechs

Berlin, Nov. 6 (AP)—Two Czechs who fought a series of gun battles with East Berlin police in an unsuccessful attempt to reach freedom in the West, are to be tried for the murder of four policemen. Soviet zone authorities announced yesterday that the two—Cyril Janata and Vaclav Svabta, both 30—would go on trial. Three other Czechs who started with them reached the safety of West Berlin Sunday night. They reported they killed possibly eight German policemen in five gun fights as they fled across the Soviet occupation zone.

Two Are Questioned

Two men questioned during a routine investigation were arrested by state police in the town of Lloyd Thursday night and held as suspects wanted in the state of Connecticut on abandonment charges. Troopers said Edgar E. Berube, Jr., 24, and Walter Moran, 23, both of Danielson, Conn., were detained on authority of a teletype message listing them as wanted in Connecticut. They were taken to the Ulster county jail to await arrival of authorities from that state.

Elementary School Gain Is 253 Here

Laidlaw Reports 50 Less at KHS; 1,347 Listed at Private Schools in Kingston

A total enrollment of 6,777 for the city's public and private schools, an increase of 212 over last year, was reported to the city board of education by Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw.

The enrollment last year totaled 6,565, he pointed out.

Despite general gains in both public and private schools, at the elementary level, however, a decrease of 50 students was noted at the high school level. Last year Kingston High School had an enrollment of 1,829 against 1,779 this year.

Although the high school lost 50 students, the elementary public schools gained 253. A total of 3,651 are enrolled in the public elementary schools against 3,398 last year. Laidlaw noted that the public schools, both elementary and high school, have an enrollment of 5,430 this year against 5,227 last year, an increase of 203.

The total private and parochial school enrollment embracing six schools, is 1,347 this year compared to 1,338 last year, an increase of nine.

The private and parochial schools were listed by Laidlaw as follows: St. Joseph's, 411; St. Mary's, 393; St. Peter's, 190; St. Ursula's, elementary, 83; St. Ursula's, academic, 102; Immaculate Conception, 124; and Immanuel Lutheran, 44.

5,430 in Public Schools

The total public school enrollment was listed at 5,430 and private school enrollment at 1,347. Enrollment in the city's eight public schools is as follows: School 2, 318; School 3, 230; School 4, 207; School 5, 468; School 6, 573; School 7, 295; George Washington, 766; MJM 7th grade 292, and MJM 8th grade 396.

Enrollment by grades: Kindergarten, public, 501, private, 19; Grade 1, public, 556, private, 196; Grade 2, public, 389, private, 191; Grade 3, public, 319, private, 147; Grade 4, public, 314, private, 157; Grade 5, public, 347, private, 145; Grade 6, public, 385, private, 161; Grade 7, public, 396, private, 128; Grade 8, public, 369, private, 101; special classes, public, 75.

The board approved a Board of Regents resolution that one-half unit of high school credit be granted for one year of National Guard training, including the two weeks summer training period.

Laidlaw read a letter from the State Education Department in which it was pointed out that schools were required to conduct monthly air raid drills and report compliance to New York State Civil Defense Commission.

These drills are being held in local schools as required, Laidlaw stated. He explained, however, that the regulation stipulates that the school fire alarm system shall not be used for air raid drills, which is the practice in local schools. He pointed out that a separate signal was used, however, one for fire drills and one for air raid drills, and that they appeared to be perfectly adequate. It was the consensus of the board that the present system should be continued.

Atomic Secret End Asked; Price Is Called Too High

Editor Asks What Would Have Happened if Ford, Edison Had Been Shackled

Chicago, Nov. 6 (AP)—A newspaper editor today called for an easing of the tight secrecy surrounding atomic energy on grounds that the price paid for such secrecy is "too, too high."

William P. Steven of the Minneapolis Star and Tribune said: "A full development of the peaceful uses of atomic power inevitably demands that the secrecy clauses in the present law be eliminated."

Steven, chairman of the Freedom of Information Committee of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association, told news executives at the annual APME meeting.

"The one greatest power source discovered by man we lock up as best we can behind a wall of secrecy—not trusting it to ourselves for fear we reveal it to someone else, not trusting our own capacities to think ahead, produce ahead and stay ahead of the nations of the world."

"How can we win the battle for democracy, for the rights of man, with tactics of nationalization, of monopoly, of secrecy?"

"The answer is we cannot."

To Ask Amendments

Steven told fellow editors amendments to the Atomic Energy Act will be proposed at the next session of Congress. One amendment, he suggested, should "strike out the legal requirements of secrecy."

"The price of that secrecy by law," he said, "is too, too high."

"No such requirement of law," he said, "guards the few necessary secrets of our armed forces or our State Department."

He pointed out that the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 gives the Atomic Energy Commission authority to "control" information in a manner that will "assure common defense and security."

Steven said that among the things "wrong" with atomic secrecy are these:

Cannot Be Judged

"Newspapers cannot inform the people. Public agencies and employees cannot be fairly judged. We cannot evaluate our defenses. We cannot know whether

President Ends Cover-Up Order

Truman Measure Goes Out; Some News Is Restricted

Washington, Nov. 6 (AP)—President Eisenhower today issued an order designed to give citizens a freer flow of information about their government without jeopardizing national security.

Effective Dec. 15, the order replaces a controversial measure former President Truman put on the books Sept. 24, 1951.

In announcing the forthcoming repeal of the Truman order, Atty. Gen. Brownell denounced it as "a system of dictatorship." The cabinet officer also said that under the old order government officials could "cover up dereliction" of duty and mistakes.

Truman, responding to similar criticism from editors when his order was issued, denied there was any cover-up involved. He said the measure actually would promote the flow of news and sought only to keep security secrets from potential enemies.

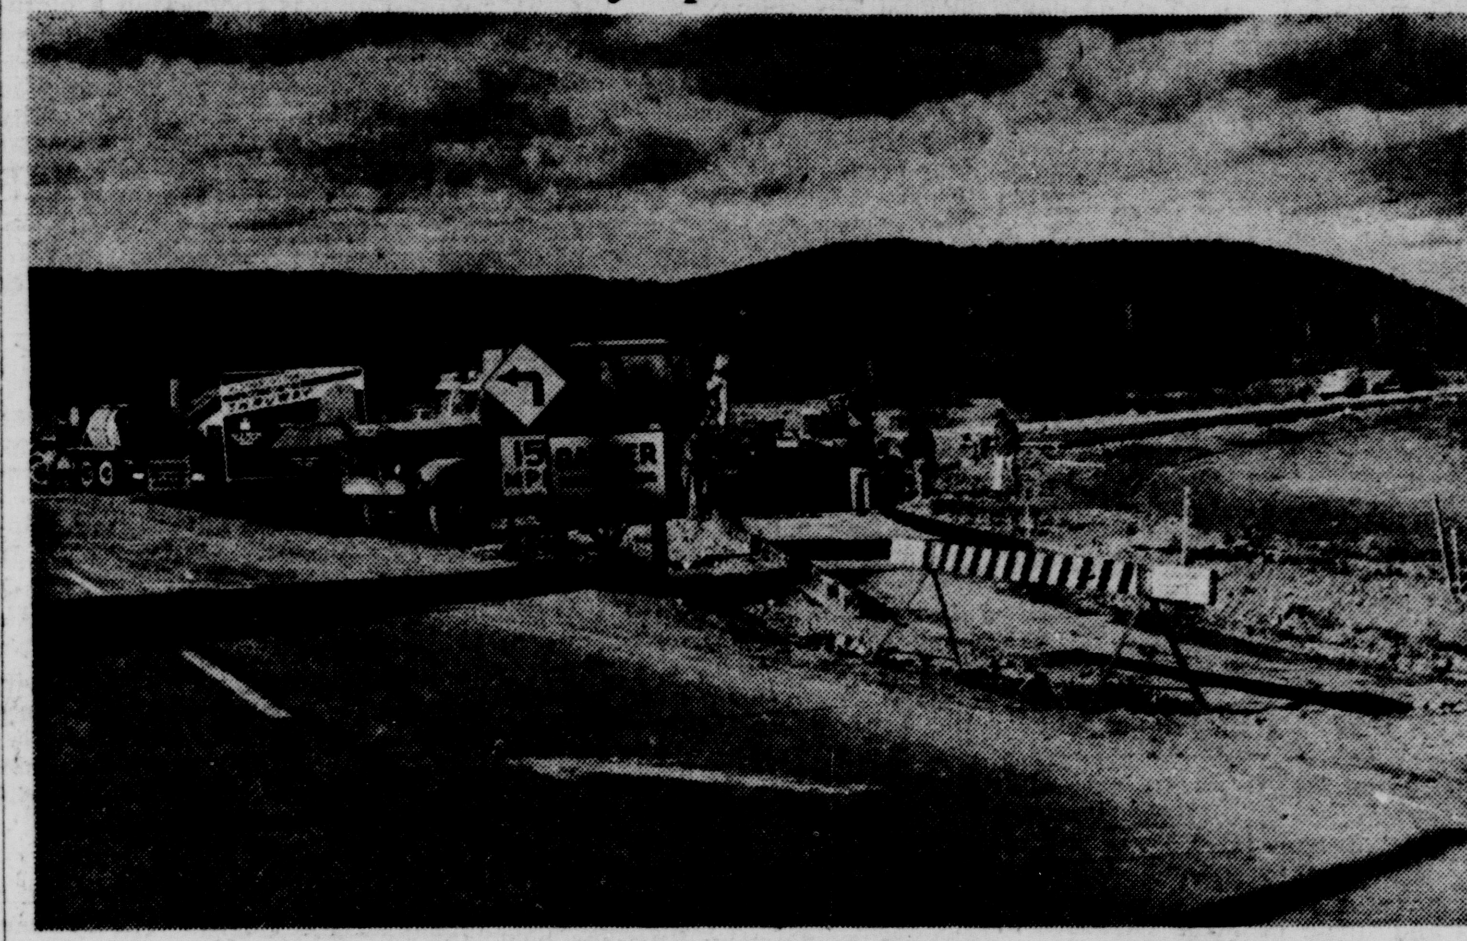

Brownell outlined the new Eisenhower order at a news conference before leaving for Chicago to address a meeting of the Associated Press Managing Editors Assn. (APME) today (11:30 A.M.). He said the measure includes suggestions made by that organization, the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) and representatives of other news media.

In brief, the Eisenhower order:

1. Eliminates the "restricted" category for classifying government data as harmful to national security if made public—leaving only "top secret," "secret" and "confidential."
2. Sets up a system for receiving complaints from newsmen and others outside the government, and for checking up on the program.
3. Takes away document-classifying authority from 28 agencies, such as the American Battle Monuments Commission and the Veterans Administration.
4. Gives classifying authority to the heads only, with no power to delegate it to someone else, of 17

Civil Service Asks Boost In Salaries for Employees

Wholesale Price Cut on Gasoline

Average of Quarter Cent Is Made in 15-State Marketing Area

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. today reduced wholesale gasoline prices by an average of a quarter of a cent a gallon in its 15-state eastern marketing area which extends from the Carolinas to Maine.

In Metropolitan New York the cut amounts to 3/10ths of a cent a gallon, making the posted tank-wagon price of "regular" grade gasoline 15.9 cents excluding taxes.

Other major producers were expected to follow suit. It was left to individual service station operators to decide whether to pass the reductions on to retail consumers.

Socony's price cut is the first official change in the posted price of gasoline on the eastern seaboard since increases totaling about 1 1/2 cents a gallon were made last June. The reduction was announced at a time of steadily rising inventories.

Skipper Is Absolved

Boston, Nov. 6 (AP)—A navy board of inquiry has absolved the skipper of the aircraft carrier Leyte of any blame in the Oct. 16 explosion and fire which killed 37 and injured 39. Rear Adm. Ahroon of Norfolk, Va., as the board completed its inquiry yesterday: "We can find no fault or negligence on your part in this accident. We congratulate you on your handling of the emergency."

Unit's Request Referred to Finance Group of Common Council

A request by the Ulster County Chapter, Civil Service Employees Association Inc., for a general salary increase for all local civil service employees was referred to the finance committee of the Common Council at a meeting of the council last night.

The four-point proposal asked for an increase of at least 15 per cent on salaries or a blanket boost of $480.

The association also asked that the city "merge into basic pay scales all emergency compensation now outstanding."

Also requested was the re-examination and adjustment of the "current salary plan since the difference between the minimum and maximum range for a job fails to adequately recognize the basic principles of the merit system and is more narrow than the general practices of public personnel administration."

Recognition Asked

The fourth point asked that the city recognize "long and faithful public service by additional increments above and beyond those called for in a revised salary structure commonly referred to as a 'longevity allowance.'"

The letter noted that the national economic situation has changed so much since 1940 that the purchasing power of the dollar is now about half, and that wages in private industry have risen more rapidly than the upward trend in prices.

State Withholds Pay Pending Rule On Proper Fund

Meanwhile Two Aides of Lt. Gov. Wicks Are Awaiting Their Checks

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—The state is withholding salaries of two appointees recently named by Acting Lt. Gov. Arthur H. Wicks, pending an opinion on which funds the money should come from, the department of audit and control said yesterday.

A spokesman said the attorney general's office had been asked to decide whether the two men, Conrad J. Heiselman and John Larkin, should be paid from the Senate appropriation or that for the lieutenant-governor's office.

"But he said there was no question that they would be paid."

Wicks made the appointments after he took over the duties of former Lt. Gov. Frank C. Moore, who resigned Sept. 30. The two posts were vacated when Moore left office to become head of a private foundation.

Were Transferred

Heiselman said at Wicks' office in Kingston that both he and Larkin had been employed in the Republican majority leader's Senate office and were transferred to the lieutenant-governor's office.

He said he was administrative assistant to Wicks and Larkin was the acting lieutenant governor's counsel.

The audit and control spokesman said it remained for the attorney general's office to decide which payroll should carry their names.

Wicks is temporary president of the Senate. In that post he has assumed the duties of acting lieutenant governor.

However, the state constitution provides for no such office as acting lieutenant governor, the title informally accorded to Wicks.

Wicks, under pressure from Gov. Dewey to resign because of his visits to labor extortionist Joseph P. Kamp in Sing Sing prison, has promised to let the Senate pass upon his fitness for office at a special session of the Legislature Nov. 17.

Actions by Wicks

Wicks transferred Heiselman from the majority leader's office to a vacancy titled administrative assistant to the lieutenant governor, and moved Larkin to the counsel's post in the lieutenant governor's office after Wicks had been sworn in as the state's number two man at brief ceremonies on Oct. 1.

Police Say Violations Not Willful

Fifteen to 25 Persons Are Arrested Each Week in County—Is in Two Sections

The state school bus law is a law that everyone wants to obey, but one which is often misunderstood and which is being violated in the vicinity of Kingston every schoolday, a survey of law enforcement agencies and justices of the peace revealed today.

Estimates made by state police at Kingston, Highland, Phoenicia and Ellenville on the number of arrests indicated that a total of from 15 to 25 persons are arrested in the county every week for passing stopped school buses. Additional arrests are made by the sheriff's office. The usual fine for a first offender is $10.

Most Violations Unconscious

Law enforcement officers agree that in most cases violations are committed "unconsciously," according to the statements of motorists they arrest. A number of those arrests have indicated some misunderstanding of the provisions of the law.

The law actually is contained in two separate sections of the New York State Motor Vehicle Law, one dealing with regulations for the motorist, and the other with requirements on the markings and operation of the buses.

Shall Make Full Stop

Section 81, Subdivision 24 of the law provides that "the driver of a vehicle overtaking or meeting an omnibus which has stopped for the purpose of receiving or discharging passengers shall bring his vehicle to a complete stop, and keep it stationary until such omnibus shall resume motion or until signalled by the driver to proceed, provided flashing red lights and signs designating the omnibus as a school omnibus are displayed as required by or pursuant to the provisions of Subdivision 20 of Section 15 of this chapter."

The section goes on to state that the bus driver must instruct the pupils to cross the street in front of the bus, and must operate the flashing red lights.

The words "overtaking or meeting" include motorists approaching the school bus from either direction.

A conviction under this section cannot be had unless the bus displays the flashing red lights and signs required by the law. One justice of the peace queried as to reports that persons arrested complained in a few instances that the red lights were not flashing, advised in such cases that a plea of innocent be entered and the case be defended.

Specific Points

Section 15, Subdivision 20 of the law states very specifically how a school bus must be designated: "Every omnibus having a seating capacity of more than seven passengers and used exclusively to transport pupils or pupils and teachers to and from school shall be equipped" as follows:

1. It must have at least one flashing red signal on the front and at least one on the back. Signals must be located "no more than six inches below the top of the vehicle" and their lenses shall not be "less than six inches in diameter."

2. There must be two signs, one on front and one on the rear, containing the words "School Bus" in black letters, at least eight inches in height, on a background in a color known as "national school bus chrome"—a sort of yellow.

If the flashing red lights and the school bus signs are present in their proper form, the bus then is a school bus within the meaning of Section 81 of the law, regardless of what color the rest of the bus may be.

Some confusion has been evident on the part of motorists, over Subdivision 21 of Section 20, which provides that buses owned by a school district or municipal corporation used exclusively for transportation of pupils or pupils and teachers to and from school should be painted in "national school bus chrome."

Lights and Signs

This requirement is one that concerns districts that own their own buses, but has nothing to do with whether the motorist must stop. The only thing to be considered (Continued on Page 15, Col. 4)

Atomic Secret End

We are doing all that must be done to be safe.

"We stultify proper interest in civilian defense.

"We put blockades in the way of building a free world army by banning the exchange of military atomic information.

"Peacetime development of atomic energy is hamstrung."

"We force nationalization of the most important power source in the history of man."

Steven said that under current secrecy the "biggest story of our century"—that of atomic energy—can't be told in depth and with perspective.

Steven made clear that we should not tell the Russians how to make the H-bomb. He quoted Gordon Dean, AEC chairman from 1950 to 1953, as saying:

"Never Had Monopoly

"We never had a monopoly in this country in atomic energy. All we had was the exclusive possession of a stockpile of atomic weapons for a few years. Even that now is gone."

Steven recalled that the AEC last month announced that it will build an atomic electrical power plant. He raised a question of why the AEC embarked on the power program in 1953.

"Nuclear power has been considered a possibility since Hiroshima," he said. "Has there been inertia hidden by secrecy? Would a press free to question the actions of a government agency have stirred AEC to an earlier embarkation?"

Suppose, he said, electricity and the automobile in their earliest periods had been placed in the hands of a government agency. He wondered what would have happened if Thomas Edison and Henry Ford had worked in a government research bureau. He said:

"For a nation which has grown great by allowing free play of the best ingenuity and inventiveness and intelligence of its people, this policy of locked-up research may save us the secret and cost us the war."

Water Board Puts $500,000 Bond Issue Over to Monday

The Kingston Board of Water Commissioners last night recessed its regular November meeting to Monday to act on a proposed $500,000 bond issue for water department improvements.

Estimates on the projects, which have been reported as urgently needed were discussed and it was indicated that if the bond issue is approved the water rate will be from 32 to 40 per cent.

Largest of the projects would be a standpipe in the 12th ward estimated to cost $230,000. Replacement of about a mile of old weakened pipe between the city and the filtering plant would cost $154,000, and a project to safeguard equipment and personnel at the equalizing reservoir in the Sawkill area would be $60,000.

New chlorine equipment and pumps would cost an estimated $10,000 for the filter plant. Additional pipes near the Benedictine Hospital would cost $20,000 and the purchase of equipment and the cost of other minor construction projects would be $26,000.

If the board approves the bond issue Monday it will be forwarded for Common Council action.

It Didn't Pay

Indianapolis (AP)—Two pals, Bob Casey and Joe Price, went on a fishing trip west of Indianapolis recently. Bob paid $1.50 to fish in a private lake while Joe fished for free in a creek. Bob didn't get a nibble and Joe came back with a bucket full of fish.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Nov. 6 (AP)—A split rally in the railroads today showed strong gains going to between 1 and 2 points at the outside. The rest of the market was fractionally higher. There were a few soft spots.

Stepping ahead with the railroads were the steels, rubbers, aircrafts and most oils, motors, and utilities. On the lower side of the ledger were the coppers and many chemicals.

Zenith Radio was up fractionally after reporting profits for nine months equal to $8.32 a share as against $5.23 last year.

Presented to Queen

London, Nov. 6 (AP)—Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme allied commander in Europe, was presented to Queen Elizabeth II today in formal audience at Buckingham Palace. Mrs. Gruenther accompanied him.

Civil Service Asks

street, an employee of the city assessor's office to "cure and perfect" titles of properties acquired through tax sales, was referred to the corporation counsel.

Citing ordinances of Feb. 6, 1948, Flynn's communication, signed by several property owners, noted that the sale of such properties should be held only "after public notice to be published at least once each week for three weeks in the official paper or papers."

Flynn noted that 21 days did not elapse from the day of the first publication "making the deeds ineffectual" in the instance he cited, and he requested the necessary legal adjustment in behalf of those represented on the communication and for "all others similarly situated."

Asks Business Zone

A request by Michael Ambrose, of 364 Broadway, for a business zone designation on a property at 41 to 28 Jansen avenue, was referred to the laws and rules committee.

The petitioner had been denied the zoning change because the property was used for the processing of bags, but he said the former tenant has moved out and he hopes to rent the property for the storing of automobiles. The property, which, he said, represents an investment of $30,000, was bought with the understanding that it was a recognized business property.

Two small claims were referred to the corporation counsel. One for $35 was filed by Martin H. Hagle, of 254 West Chestnut street, who said that on Oct. 21 his car was sprayed with aluminum paint which blew on it while workmen were spraying the wire fence around the sewage disposal plant on East Strand.

The other claim for $10 was filed by Robert Swiat, of 40 Larch street, who said his car was damaged when it struck a hole in Cross street where a contractor was digging a sewer.

Asks Blinker Light

Alderman Abram D. Relyea asked that the blinker light, which he had requested in September for Marius street and Washington avenue be installed.

State Withholds

Two children, he said, had been "brushed or scraped" by automobiles only yesterday. The resolution was referred to the traffic control committee and police chief.

Relyea also asked for the repair of Pine street, between Henry street and Greenkill avenue, and Marius street between Washington avenue and Glen street.

Alderman James K. Ryan asked that signs reading "play area" be placed on VanDeusen and VanBuren streets, because since some houses there have been divided into more apartments, more families with children live on the streets.

Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly welcomed aldermen elect Arthur Smith, eighth ward, and William Bodenweber, ninth ward, who came to observe the session. Alderman Ryan said Charles Cole, alderman elect, 13th ward, would attend a later meeting.

There Are Many Treatments Available for Alcoholism

Because alcoholism is officially recognized as the nation's fourth major public health problem, and since its effects on the victims, families, and communities are so widespread and serious, The Freeman presents an educational series on this disrupting affliction as a community public health service. This is the fifth and last article in the series.

This series is not a temperance crusade, nor is it any attempt to invade anyone's private life, it is simply a factual, unbiased attempt to present the truth as known on this grave medical and social problem which merits the attention and understanding of everyone—non-drinkers as well as drinkers.

Prevention begins with understanding. Perhaps you can help someone in need of help.

By AN ALCOHOLIC

Recovery or rehabilitation, rather than cure, is always referred to in the treatment of alcoholism, for there is no cure—at least, to date. A cure would mean that the compulsion or drive underlying alcoholism would be removed. It also would mean that the victim could safely resume drinking without any damage to self or others.

All evidence, thus far, rules out the possibility of an alcoholic ever becoming a controlled drinker. Once an alcoholic, always an alcoholic, just as the diabetic always remains a diabetic. Both can and do recover. Neither can ever forget what must be done to maintain recovery.

Treatment of alcoholism consists of stopping the drinker, getting the patient in good physical condition, and then guiding him out of his wilderness of despair in which he has wandered so long. He has to be helped to see himself as he is, not as he thinks he is. Sobering up the drinker is only a minor part of the overall task of treatment.

Put in Doctor's Hands

In all cases of acute alcoholism, it is best to place the victim in the hands of an understanding physician. After a complete physical and laboratory check-up, the doctor will be able to determine if there are any serious organic ailments present which might be contributing to the drinking urge. Or he may decide that the excessive drinking is due to unusual emotional strain and stress. All of these factors must be considered in determining treatment recommendations.

There are many treatments available for alcoholism. However, no one of the methods is the answer to all cases. Among these therapies are: Alcoholics Anonymous, psychiatric, clinical care, institutional confinement, religious conversion, aversion treatment, or some other control treatment. The seriousness of one's condition, his financial state, and the general background of the alcoholic all play an important role in selecting treatment procedure.

Psychiatric treatment helps the patient to understand his real problems, to understand himself in relation to these problems, and then to help himself. The psychiatrist becomes a medical explorer, father confessor, friend and advisor. He helps the patient to remove the snags and blocks of the mind which have prevented him from being a happy, useful person. This treatment reduces the patient's urge to prefer alcoholic unreality to sober reality.

State Clinics

The clinic approach is fast becoming a standard practice in states where alcoholism is rightly viewed as a community health problem. These state-supported clinics are staffed with understanding personnel, skilled in handling every phase of the alcoholic's personality problems and the factors having any influence on them. Clinics are helping many victims, heretofore neglected. Jails and workhouses have failed miserably as remedies. Punishment merely aggravates the condition of any ill person.

Of all the known treatments of alcoholism, that of Alcoholics Anonymous stands out as the most effective, most dramatic and most available for the greatest numbers. It is a source of unusual inspiration and guidance for those needing and wanting help with their drinking difficulties. The history of A. A. is packed with exciting chapters of recovery for the thousands of alcoholics—rich and poor men and women—once exiled beyond all hope of help.

There is no cost to this treatment—only the sincere desire to do something about one's uncontrolled drinking and disordered living. The door is open to any man or woman who has come to the conclusion that alcohol has interfered with one's life, or threatens to.

Benefits of A. A.

The program of A. A. is based on the experiences of alcoholics, together with what has been learned from medicine, psychiatry and the spiritual principles common to all creeds. A. A. is not a group of reformers, crusaders, or "holier-than-thou" characters at war with alcohol. Its distillers, dispensers or drinkers exist solely for the purpose of helping those who want help. Anyone may call A. A. for assistance, but it is essential to remember that the person needing the help must be sincere in wanting it. The sincerity of the victim's family or friends won't count if the alcoholic isn't sincere.

There is no disgrace in seeking help when one finally admits that he or she is an alcoholic. To admit it is to be courageous, and it marks the beginning of the end to the disgrace which has undoubtedly been attached to one's drinking career. In trying to recover what one has lost through years of uncontrolled drinking, it usually happens that one gains more than he or she ever had. That is what happens to thousands of men and women in A. A.

The road back to sobriety and sanity, usefulness and happiness is not always a smooth one. Where there is life, there will be troubles. The alcoholic must always be alert to his personality weaknesses, lest he return to his disordered way of thinking and acting—the formula for a return to drinking.

The alcoholic must be convinced that alcohol for him means an impossible, unhappy way of life. He can never forget that moderate drinking for him is an impossibility. Sober reality must be preferred to alcoholic unreality at all times. Complete honesty with self and others is essential to maintain correct thinking as against the old incorrect thinking in drinking days.

Self-Control by Judgment
To assure sobriety, one must learn to handle success as well as failure and control self by judgment rather than emotion. Self-criticism should always be preferred to criticism of others. The wise person will try to understand rather than always insist on being understood. Since worry is a most plaguing factor in the alcoholic's make-up, he should worry adequately about troubles at the right time rather than inadequately all the time. The alcoholic must never expect a medal or halo for having stopped drinking, even though some may feel that his stopping was a miracle. He should learn to concentrate on what he is doing rather than on what he is going to do next. Impatience is fatal.

Last, but not least, it should never be forgotten that but for the Grace of God, a recovered alcoholic is only one drink away from a drunk, disaster and despair. The alcoholic can be helped and is worth helping.

Man Killed in Crash

Newark, N. J., Nov. 6 (AP)—An Erie Railroad commuter train struck a panel truck at a crossing last night, killing 52-year-old George Frey of Lyndhurst. A rescue squad worked under floodlights for 40 minutes to extricate Frey's body from the truck, which had been pushed about 125 feet by the train and finally toppled to the left of the tracks. Some 400 persons, including train passengers, crowded around the scene near the Newark-Belleville line.

Breaks Record With Saw On 32-Inch Fir Log

Seattle, Nov. 6 (AP)—In little more time than it will take you to read this, Paul M. Searls last night sawed through a log thicker than your dining room table is high.

In doing so, he set a record he thinks will stand a long time. As far as Searls personally is concerned it never will fall. The 48-year-old Toutle, Wash., saw flier hung up his contest cuttin' saw after whizzing through the 32-inch fir log in 1 minute, 26 and 2/5 seconds and said:

"Never again."

His sawdust-making feat broke his own old mark of 2 minutes, 8 seconds. Searls has been cutting logs in competition since 1936 but never for a living. His occupation is sharpening saws for Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. at Toutle.

The new mark was set at the Pacific Logging Congress.

Camera Reveals Poliomyelitis Virus

Pocono Manor, Pa., Nov. 6 (AP)—The camera lens has caught a public enemy: polio virus.

Magnified from 200,000 to 300,000 times, the deadly beings appear as tiny round balls—so small that a million side by side barely would measure an inch long.

The pictures confirming estimates that the polio bug is one of the smallest of known viruses, said Dr. Taylor, were taken during studies which indicate the feasibility of preparing concentrated virus necessary to make polio vaccine.

Must Be Tested

A vaccine Parke-Davis is developing must be further tested, Taylor said, before it is ready for general use—maybe a year or more from now.

It is possible now through recently developed techniques to grow polio virus in test tubes without the nervous tissue upon which the killer normally feeds. That advancement has made it possible to obtain almost pure polio virus for study in medical science's search for a vaccine.

All three types which can cause polio in humans are under study by Parke-Davis. The photographs Taylor showed are of type one, or Brunhilde polio virus. It is understood other researchers also have succeeded in taking such pictures.

TEST OF INFORMATION SYSTEM

Shortly President Eisenhower will issue an executive order revising the government information system to provide for a freer flow of news. Needless to say, the action will be welcomed by both press and public.

The President's order will supersede one handed down two years ago by former President Truman. That directive was widely assailed as giving department and agency heads too much discretion in the classifying of information as restricted or secret. "Peacetime censorship" was the label applied.

Evidently the new order will narrow sharply the area in which information can be withheld. It will seek to achieve this in three ways.

First, it will take from a large number of agencies the power to classify any information at all. In a second group of agencies, it will limit that authority to the agency head himself, meaning that a substantial array of underlings will lose the power to withhold information.

Thirdly, one of the four categories of information included in the Truman order will be eliminated altogether. That classification is designated as "restricted." Government authorities concede it has become a catch-all into which many items are tossed without valid reason.

The avowed objective of this new plan is to strike a better balance between reasonable security and the need of a free citizenry to be fully informed about what their government is doing.

This is an admirable aim, but we ought to understand that merely changing the ground rules will not automatically provide press and public with fuller information. It is also necessary for the men who have this information to be accessible.

If the complaints of many leading Washington reporters are to be accepted at face value, then there has been a decided reluctance on the part of many top men in the Eisenhower administration to make themselves available to newsmen. Publishers can get to see them, but not ordinary reporters.

A prominent exception is Secretary of State Dulles, who has gone out of his way to tell the story of the State Department's activities, even to the point of getting himself into hot water a couple of times through his extreme frankness.

Admittedly this administration, in its first nine months, has been in the "study and review" stage. Hard news has perhaps not been too plentiful, and that might reasonably justify some official reluctance. But the general feeling seems to be that the habit of unavailability is much more than this; that it indicates neglect of the fact that effective policy is founded on an informed public.

The coming new information set-up will be a vast improvement over the old. But it can only be a framework for action. The real test will be how the Eisenhower men apply the system in the critical months just over the horizon.

Too many cars on the highway are designed by mechanical geniuses and driven by motorists with kiddiecar mentalities.

LEARNING FOR SOLDIERS

The universities of Maryland, California and Louisiana, working with the armed forces program for information and education, have been bringing educational opportunities to American soldiers in scattered parts of the world. The program has been underway for several years and after experimentation and development it is now possible for a serviceman to earn a degree in military science, general studies or the liberal arts while serving overseas.

Most of the tuition for enlisted men and officers below the rank of captain is paid for by the government. Courses are also open to State Department personnel and other American nationals living abroad. Some of the teachers are Americans studying abroad and performing their teaching duties as part time work.

The idea of bringing the opportunity to learn to our servicemen abroad is a good one.

GENERAL MARK CLARK

Again a great American general, of the widest experience in Europe, Africa and Asia, Mark Clark, leaves the service of the American people. He takes a job at The Citadel, in Charleston, South Carolina. The Citadel is a state military college of distinction, but Mark Clark should not be there at a time like this. He belongs in the Pentagon, which needs his knowledge and experience.

Such men as General Douglas MacArthur, General Albert C. Wedemeyer, General Mark Clark are hard to find. Each one of these men left the service because he talked out of turn. Each one said what he believed to be right. Result: MacArthur is selling electric razors; Wedemeyer is selling farm machinery; Clark is running a school for boys. Curiously, each one, by the course of events, has turned out to have been right.

The last episode in Clark's story was Korea. He, like MacArthur, Ridgway and Van Fleet, felt that he could have won that war and said so. Each was stopped from winning the war by superior authorities in the Pentagon. So we lost the war, the first one that we have lost in our history. General Mark Clark signed the truce agreement. It was like signing a capitulation. No man prefers that on his record, particularly as he knew what to do to turn that war into a victory. So Clark got out at the age of 57, after having been in the service 40 years, counting his tour at West Point.

The loss is America's. These men are highly skilled, tautly trained. The pity of it is that too many men who rise to the very top are forced out of service. Those who are routine-watchers stay in by seniority. Those who never stick their necks out, never have them chopped off.

Wedemeyer, for instance, held positions during World War II which involved thorough knowledge and profound thought. He planned the details of the invasion of Europe. He took over the China campaign after General George Marshall and General Joseph Stilwell had made a mess of it. But he wrote the Wedemeyer Report, which, while sound, was political dynamite. Its publication, when presented to President Truman on September 9, 1947, would have wrecked the reputation of General Marshall and Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

That was not General Wedemeyer's intention, but the consequences were inherent in the truth and therefore in his report. So, they suppressed the report until August, 1949, and Wedemeyer went into the Avco Manufacturing Corporation. His training, his experience, his knowledge is at the service of Crosley radios, not of the people of the United States.

Mark Clark has had the same experience. He has been openly critical of policies which, as a soldier, he had to carry out. A man of his intelligence does not enjoy being a robot, particularly when he knows what can and should be done.

The effect of these retirements, and many others has been a lowering of the morale in all the services. Men have reached the conclusion that experience does not count. After every war, the military force has to be reduced and a large number of officers have to be retired. Also the younger men must be moved up so that they can gain the experience necessary for service in the next war. While peace is necessary, a military establishment must always live in the prospect of war. Otherwise, it would become inefficient. Our military establishments have, in fact, suffered from a general unwillingness of the public and Congress to recognize that their function in peace is to keep ready for war.

This involves a further principle, namely, that the next war is not fought as the past ones were. World War I introduced the submarine, the airplane and the tank; World War II introduced the atom bomb, radar and the guided missile. Already whatever was introduced in World War II is obsolete. We and the enemy have moved far beyond anything known then. Fresh minds are required to acquaint themselves with and to develop the new weapons and the new concepts of war.

But that does not mean that we can afford to cast aside the finest intellects developed in the last war. MacArthur's genius, Wedemeyer's wisdom, and Clark's experience ought always to be available. To cast such men aside is a profligate expenditure of valuable personnel. (Copyright, 1953, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

CARE OF THE ELDERLY

For a number of years I found myself writing about the liver, the largest organ in the body, and its holding about 25 per cent. of the blood during which it filtered and removed harmful substances, manufactured bile, which is nature's purgative and antiseptic, stored sugar, manufactured coloring matter and other useful substances.

Then came the fact that heart and blood vessel diseases stood first as a cause of death, the use of insulin to control diabetes, and of liver and liver extracts to control pernicious anemia.

Today, many physicians are finding that their practice numbers a great many older people and so health writers are now informing elderly people and their families of the facts concerning the process of aging and how the latter years of the elderly can be made more free of pain and disability and life much more worth living.

In the Ontario Medical Review, we read the Canadian Welfare Council sponsored the visit of two British physicians to Canada during May and June of this year; Drs. T. C. Andrews and T. Budd, both members of the Southeast Regional Hospital Board in the United Kingdom. These physicians visited several centers in Eastern Canada and addressed the Welfare Council in Ottawa. They stated that "the problems of caring for the old have received special attention in Britain because of the aging population there." For instance, in the region where these physicians serve on the geriatric subcommittee of the regional board, 29 per cent (nearly a third) of the people are old.

What did these British physicians find about the needs of the aging in Canada and much that would apply to other countries?

"They stressed particularly the need of proper records of the medical care of the old; they emphasized the need of a personal interest in the personalities of old people to be cared for; they emphasized that expensive hospital and other buildings were not needed, and that small units should be used as much as possible. The best plan to care for an old person is in a family home; the next best is an environment which simulates a family home, housing perhaps a dozen old people who do their share of the work of the house and are under the care of a competent matronly person, who may or may not have special training."

They pointed out that by getting old people to be up and about, not bed patients, there was less incontinence of urine, interest grew, and more useful work was performed.

Hollywood (NEA) — Ladies in Republican headquarters here have looked over the figures—statistics, that is—of women members of state legislatures.

The typical lady lawmaker is about 53 years old, married, the mother of two children. The average has a high school education with one year of specialized study. About half had been school-teachers.

The survey also revealed that women politicians have a wide range of legislative interests. They tend to concentrate, however, on antidiscrimination, absentee voting, women's rights, education, child health, aid to the handicapped, welfare and conservation.

With the Trieste news making the front pages pretty regularly, an interesting item of international intrigue appeared on Washington society pages the other day.

Eisenhower Avoids Traps at Press Conference, Admits He Doesn't Know About Poll Tests

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 6.—They have a White House rule that doesn't permit first-person quotation of everything a President says in a press conference—but it's most unfortunate because by all odds the most interesting piece of news about the elections was what Mr. Eisenhower said about it to the press.

There were at least three opportunities for him to be devious—to avail himself of the tricks of the political game or to boom forth with a sweeping statement of confidence in the future of his party, as if nothing adverse had happened Tuesday. But he turned them all aside and talked frankly, earnestly and without guile.

For one thing the President declined to be drawn into an analysis or interpretation of the election results. He frankly said he didn't know any more about it than—if as much as—some of the newspapermen interrogating him. But he did recognize that in some places Republicans had lost and in some places they had won, and he didn't feel that he should say whether or not the election was a test of his policies because he frankly didn't know.

At one point in the conversation Mr. Eisenhower told the press that as most people know, he is a novice in politics and has never claimed to be a politician. But he does pin his faith to a belief in the common sense of the American people when they are informed. He thinks they have to be informed as to the basic facts—and some of these facts are rather stark and disagreeable—and the administration has the duty of putting forth and enacting a program that the mass of the American people will say is a good one. The job of the administration, he says, is to provide a dynamic and forward-looking program.

When the reporters asked him if perhaps some voters thought they hadn't yet gotten the change they voted for last autumn, the President said he thought the change the people wanted was an orderly and progressive change and not just any other kind. He added they were going to get it and are getting it.

Throughout the press conference, the President handled himself with calmness and poise and didn't become entangled in the traps into which some of the questions might have led him. An effort was made to get him to weaken his recent statement that he would favor the election of Republicans everywhere. The inquiry was whether he would support a Republican with a record that was not in support of his administration. Previously the President had remarked that his idea of endorsing Republicanism generally the other day was not intended to say he supported every candidate, irrespective of individual character or integrity.

But, even if this wasn't involved, he was then asked, would he support anti-administration Republicans for re-election in Congress next year? The President declined to commit himself to what he would do about this, but he gave the impression he was not going to become involved in local contests with specific individuals in his party.

Thus the President tried also to convey the idea that, in saying he had "lost" skirmishes before, and he permitted direct quotation on that phrase—he wasn't commenting on individual races but, as titular leader of the party, on the fact that some Republican contests were lost.

The President didn't hesitate to answer another question as to whether, having lost skirmishes, he intended "to win the war." This obvious reference to future congressional elections drew from the President the earnest statement that he never went into a war to lose one.

The use of such words as progressive and forward-looking indicate that the President has definite ideas as to the kind of a legislative and executive program the country expects from him. But it is clear he isn't going to fall for the strategy of the New Dealers and Fair Dealers who are constantly trying to get him to enter into a knockdown, dragout fight with the members of his own party. This is usually cloaked with the pious advice that Mr. Eisenhower should assert "leadership." But a President with both the House and the Senate almost evenly divided in party strength doesn't pick fights with his own party and split it still further. If he is tactful—and Mr. Eisenhower certainly is inherently a conciliator rather than a challenger—he will try to persuade his party following to adopt measures that are the result of common counsel and mutual concession.

Dwight Eisenhower is learning all the time something about politics, but he has already learned one important lesson—that the opposition party hasn't any friendly interest in keeping Republicans' harmonious but strong to divide them into splinter camps. The advocacy of progressive measures will never wreck the Republican party—although it has split the Democrats of the north and south—if, in sponsoring them, the President takes all the members of his own party into his confidence ahead of time and gives each section or faction a chance to present its views. ## AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Nov. 5.—Continuing my determined though intermittent effort to discredit Drew Pearson, I have checked a recent statement of his reflecting on the Associated Press and Marvin Arrowsmith of its Washington staff. Alan Gould, the executive editor of the A.P., now writes me that the statement "had no basis in fact." This is his euphemism for my relentless warnings that Pearson is a liar and a faker as many editors who print his rubbish have admitted in print and otherwise.

The incident here was a speech by Pearson to undergraduates of Bethel College, at North Newton, Kan., and others on October 17. In a Wichita Eagle reported that 2,500 persons heard Pearson charge that Marvin Arrowsmith, an A.P. reporter, covering the United States Senate, had been guilty of "unprofessional and unbusinesslike conduct." Pearson's own standards, as revealed in a number of episodes, are such that he may not have realized that the conduct which he attributed to Arrowsmith and the A.P. was disgraceful.

Granger's story in the Wichita Eagle said: "Shortly after (Senator Joe) McCarthy made his three speeches in the Senate (in 1950), a group of editors of southern newspapers affiliated with the Associated Press were told 'you must carry more news about this man.'"

"Marvin Arrowsmith, Associated Press reporter who was then covering the Senate, was called in by McCarthy. Pearson charged and told 'look here, you are going to carry my speeches in full or I will go on the floor and blast you as a Communist.'"

"Arrowsmith, who has since been assigned to other duties, had four children and was intimidated by McCarthy. Pearson told the audience, and McCarthy's activities were given full coverage. There was a complete blackout of news critical to McCarthy, Pearson charged."

On receiving a clipping of Mr. Granger's story I wrote Alan Gould, an old sports writer with whom I covered many heroic trivialities in the era of wonderful nonsense, asking him for the facts.

In an interim reply he said Mr. Granger's story was "a lie."

Musicians Union Celebrates 50th Anniversary

This year's banquet at The Barn, Wednesday night, attended by more than 200 members, guests and friends, celebrated the 50th anniversary of Local 215, American Federation of Musicians, which was reported growing rapidly in membership because of fine leadership. ## National Officer Praises Leaders, Musicians of 215

A glowing tribute to the leadership of Local 215 was paid by a national officer of the American Federation of Musicians at last night's annual banquet in The Barn, attended by more than 200 men and women.

That the organization is a success and growing steadily in membership is a tribute to the president John A. Cole and Michael Marchuk, secretary, said Harry Steeper, national treasurer of the federation, who was guest speaker.

Addressing the assemblage, Steeper said "this party is evidence of the cooperation between leaders and the membership. . . . If every local was as interested as yours, we'd have a better Federation of Musicians, if such be possible."

Fairness Is Aim

Steeper took the occasion to pay tribute to national President James Petrillo to whom he was first assistant before becoming treasurer. Petrillo, he said, stands for fairness to members of the union and those with whom they deal in the world of music.

"We're interested in seeing that everybody makes a dollar," he remarked, "the musicians and the promoting enterprises."

Urging the members to stand behind their officers, Steeper said, "Your cooperation and their ability makes for success."

He referred to President Cole as a real active and aggressive leader, and added that Secretary Marchuk was in the same category. Steeper pledged the support of the national body to the two union men and their followers.

Steeper, a veteran of World War I, broke into a bit of levity as he reminisced serving in the 29th Division with Bob Browning, local newscaster, a guest at the dinner.

Steeper Complimented

President Cole complimented Steeper for his fine cooperation in matters concerning Local 215, and called him one of the most active representatives over a long span of years.

Toastmaster Marchuk thanked Mrs. Darrow for her splendid handling of the dinner arrangements as chairman of the committee, and she expressed her appreciation for cooperation received.

Two members of the union, recently married, were called to take a bow with their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vigna and Mr. and Mrs. William Conerty. Dick McCarthy, local radio announcer and commentator, who served as emcee with local bands also took a bow.

Likes Local Bands

Mayor Oscar F. Newkirk gave the official welcome to the gathering and praised the musicians for their cooperation with him during his three terms in office. "There's no occasion for me to flatter you, as I'm not running for office," he said, "but I just want to be sincere and say I'd rather dance to the music of a local band than that of some of those imported ones."

After the dinner there was dancing to the music of an ensemble led by Red Ives.

Arson Stops Police

Wisconsin Rapids, Wis. (AP)—Local police are worried. Who wants to keep them from their pistol practice? A year ago, a shed on their practice range was burned along with targets and paraphernalia. The replacement was reinforced concrete, and all the equipment was stored in it for safekeeping. Then, on the verge of the police championship shoot, the cops were called out to handle a parade. And in their absence, someone battered down the door of the new storage shed, started a fire that not only burned all the new equipment but warped the steel beams in the shed itself.

ENGLISH AT THE MET

Back in 1948, as some of you may remember, I aimed my pop-gun at the Metropolitan Opera House and wrote half a dozen pieces in which I outlined a program for making grand opera more profitable and palatable.

Among other things, I suggested that the singers at the Met be instructed in the ABC's of diet and stage deportment; that the operas be performed in English so that we might know what was going on; that the management doll up or replace the unsightly piles of lumber which were masquerading as scenery; that it install a couple of front spotlights so the audience could distinguish an occasional face; and that it acquire a ballet troupe which didn't look like so many hangers chasing each other.

In succinct short, I said it was time that we took the Old Lady of 39th Street by the elbow and escorted her into the 20th century—and if she didn't want to go quietly, to grab her by the hair and drag her kicking and screaming.

A few months after these columns appeared, Mr. Rudolf Bing was appointed Obermensch of the Met and, by large and in the main, I think he's done a good job of prettying up the Old Lady in the past five years. Some of his dabs of rouge followed the beauty hints in my pieces—not, I'm certain, because I happened to suggest them but because the blemishes were so glaringly evident.

However, one of the things I recommended has boomeranged and hit me right in the ears—the one about doing opera in English at the Met. This bit of masterminding, I'm afraid, wasn't too well thought out, and I hereby publicly announce that, if anyone will heat it up, I'm ready to eat a portion of fricasseed crow. . . . In my plea for opera in English, I pointed out that Joe Citizen was seldom a linguist and so, couldn't get excited about the plots because he didn't know what the plots were all about. And the jabberwocky in the printed synopses didn't help much. I further maintained that, because of the language barrier, performances at the Met lacked dramatic punch and were little more than concerts with costumes and scenery. All of which, of course, is as true today as it was in 1948.

What I failed to take into account, however, were three Simple Simon facts:

1. The Met is pretty much a copy of La Scala in Milan which was erected in 1778 before "acoustics" was even a word. Its stage and auditorium are twice as large as the average theatre, and the singers have to project over a wide pit of 80 musicians to spectators who are often a city block away. Under these conditions the words of a new libretto, be they in Afghan or English, tend to get lost in their own echoes.

2. In addition, the plot lines of most of the old operas come closer to being dodo than drama. To a generation which relishes the realism of "South Pacific" and "Pal Joey" the "Way-Down-East" heroics of "La Boheme" and the mistaken identity gimmicks of "Cosi Fan Tutte" are as outmoded as the whalebone corset. To put it bluntly, when these hokey yarns are translated into our mother lingo, they are more embarrassing than enlightening.

3. With few exceptions, the singers at the Met can't act their way out of a paper bag—although they often resemble one. As a consequence a soprano who looks like a rolled-up mattress frequently sings a romantic duet with a tenor who looks like an aging shoe clerk. In Italian—all right, I can close my eyes and listen. But in English the net effect, I'm afraid, is more Grand Guignol than grand opera. . . . As I see it, it all adds up to this: Opera in English at the Met was a noble experiment but, like Prohibition, an unsuccessful one, and the time has come to use the horse sense that comes from hindsight. At least until they build him a modern opera house, I think Mr. Bing ought to stick to his foreign librettos and continue his commendable program of sprucing up the old favorites. And what, in the name of Gatti-Cazazzi, is wrong with that?

I still think it was a heck of a good idea for the Old Lady to amble into the 20th century, but now—and I think I'm speaking for a lot of people—I'd be mighty obliged to the maestro if he'd have her take one step backwards.

Riding on the Ferry

If you want a thrill in winter, that will not do you any harm. Take a ride upon the ferry.

When the weather's clear and calm. The river bed before you is covered over with ice.

How will you ever cross it? The thought comes once or twice.

When the Captain gives the signal, the boat begins to move. But you start so very slowly. The fact is hard to prove.

Now you move a little faster: The ice goes slipping past. Then the Captain gives the jingle. Ah! there's full speed at last.

The seagulls rise at your approach. The ducks just swim and gaze at you. They must be curious things.

All too soon you hear the bell. To slow down for the shore. But still there is the pleasure. Of coming back once more.

might plan to take three tricks in the black suits and then eight trump tricks by crossruffing. You are now limited to seven trump tricks and if you can safely cash four tricks in the black suits you will be vastly surprised. (You could actually do it, but shouldn't count on it.)

It is a far better idea to drop the crossruff and to establish one of the black suits instead. And you would pick the clubs rather than the spades for the very sound reason that a suit with three top cards is easier to set up than a suit with only one top card.

This is the correct general plan. You intend to set up the clubs, draw trumps, and then cash your club tricks.

The important detail is to win the first round of trumps in your own hand with the jack instead of allowing dummy to hold the trick with the eight. This makes a big difference.

The next step is to cash the queen of clubs. You then lead the low trump to dummy's nine and ruff a low club with the ace of trumps. This ruff establishes the clubs, and you can overtake the queen of trumps with dummy's king, draw the rest of East's trumps, and run the clubs.

Now see what goes wrong if you allow dummy to hold the first trump trick with the eight. You lead a club to the queen and return a trump to dummy's king in order to ruff a club. But it doesn't matter whether you ruff the club with your ace or your queen—you cannot return to dummy to draw East's trumps.

It isn't enough to be dealt the eight highest trumps in the deck. You must still use them in the correct order.

The alternative to the duel is a one-million-dollar lawsuit. Orlando has made his will.

Social Security Act Provisions

George J. Johnson, manager of the Social Security Administration here, submits the following on provisions of the Social Security Act:

The social security tax rate for persons whose work counts toward old-age and survivors insurance is scheduled to increase on the first of January, 1954. George J. Johnson, manager of the Kingston Social Security Office, servicing all of Ulster and Sullivan counties, reminded employers, employees, and self-employed people today.

This scheduled increase in tax contribution is in accordance with the 1950 amendments to the Social Security Law, and was enacted by Congress in anticipation of future obligations of the program.

Employees in jobs covered by the law will have 2 per cent instead of the present 1½ per cent deducted from their pay beginning with the first of January up to earnings of $3,600 a year; their employers will contribute an equal amount.

The new rates will apply to all taxable wages paid after December 31, 1953, regardless of when earned.

The social security tax for the self-employed is scheduled to increase from the present 2½ per cent to 3 per cent, for the period commencing January 1, 1954. Since the self-employed whose work is covered by the law pay their tax just once yearly at the time of filing their federal income tax return, they will pay the present 2½ per cent social

Their first payments at the increased rate of 3 per cent will be due March 15, 1955, for the calendar year 1954. In the meantime the Internal Revenue Service reports that employers will be furnished late this year with income tax withholding tables and Federal Insurance Contributions Act (social security taxes) tables reflecting rates applicable next year.

The next scheduled increase, six years from now, in 1960, will be to 2½ per cent each for employer, and employee, and to 3 per cent for the self-employed.

BABSON on BUSINESS

New Boston, N. H., Nov. 5—Early last summer I discussed the 1953 crop outlook, which then was more or less tentative. Now the over-all situation is more clearly defined. Despite the vagaries of summer and early fall weather, the outlook is for the third largest total production of record.

Most of my earlier crop forecasts have been well borne out. For instance, another billion-bushel-plus wheat crop already has been harvested, with much to spare. Total supplies for the 1953-1954 season would, in fact, prove extremely burdensome were it not for the Government support price of $2.21 a bushel (national average at the farm). Wheat farmers are taking good advantage of the loan, which means that prices may average somewhat higher. The gimmick, however, is this: An official curb on 1954 acreage! The piper must be paid.

Below-average crops of barley, oats, and rye have been harvested. Nevertheless, supplies of these grains should suffice for indicated requirements. Higher prices should rule over the longer term. The flaxseed crop of 39,011,000 bushels is slightly above the 10-year average and will prove fully adequate. Although drought sharply reduced soybean prospects, the indicated U. S. output of 259,483,000 bushels is 18% above the 10-year average. Including record farm stocks, total supplies will easily suffice for 1953-1954 requirements. Yet both flaxseed and soybean prices may work a little higher as the season advances.

Fall Crop Prospects

Last summer's long, hot dry spell cut the nation's corn prospects, but not enough to cause real concern. The indicated crop of around 3,200,000,000 bushels is slightly under the 1952 output, but still 5% above the 10-year average. It should suffice, since the carryover was of average size. The support price of $1.60 a bushel (national average) will ease marketing pressure. Later in the season, the price support program and the prevailing favorable feeding ratio may result in somewhat higher average prices. The edible dry bean crop this year probably will be in the vicinity of 17,730,000 bags (100 pounds each), only slightly under the 10-year average, and will easily go around. Prices are under seasonal pressure, but should recover over the longer term. The U. S. potato crop of close to 374,000,000 bushels is about 9% below the 10-year average, but well above normal domestic consumption. My June forecast of a big U. S. rice crop is being well borne out; in fact, it will set a record high. Current price weakness in both potatoes and rice should be followed by some recovery over the longer term.

Cotton Crop

My earlier cotton forecast that a large crop would be planted, despite the government's request for a sharp cut, is being fully realized. The indicated yield of 15,596,000 bales compares with the 1942-1951 average of 12,215,000 bales. Including the August 1 carryover of 5,500,000 bales, total supplies for the 1953-1954 season will be around 21,100,000 bales, or about 10,000,000 bales above indicated domestic consumption and exports. A lot of cotton planters will demand government loans this season. Cotton farmers will pay for this splurge by a sharp cut in the 1954 national cotton acreage allotment.

Farm Price Outlook

Although I expect total cash receipts from farm marketings to decline moderately in 1954, they still will be sizable. Farmers on the whole should continue to prosper. However, certain sections, like Kansas, the dairy states and parts of the southwest, are suffering. The problems of farm surpluses and a workable and fair price support program remain unsettled. Hard work, cost cutting, promotional programs, and a putting of the national interest above that of any one group will speed the solution. I will discuss the livestock situation in a later issue of this paper.

New Paltz, Nov. 5—Robert Brearey, director of music at New Paltz Central School, has announced that the following students were elected to attend the New York State School Music Association's program at Middletown Nov. 20 and 21.

Band—W. Seitz, N. Carbone, J. Wright, R. Dressel, Richard Thorpe.

Orchestra—Roger Thorpe, P. Mosher, L. Wilson, F. Triolo, R. Cotton, N. Moehrk, W. Paradies and J. Oakley.

Each year, the NYSSMA sponsors these programs throughout the state. The outstanding musical students of each state section meet and rehearse for two-day periods. The work of the two days is culminated in a concert which is open to the public.

Students of New Paltz are nominated by the music staff, a committee comprised of the president, vice-president and secretary of each major music organization, and sent to the sectional program chairman for approval.

Awards Announced In Magazine Drive

New Paltz, Nov. 5—The annual magazine drive, sponsored by the New Paltz High School Student Council, which ended Friday turned out to be a great success. Total sales soared high above those of previous years. Awards for the outstanding salesmen were made Friday afternoon at the Halloween party.

Mr. Klock's junior homeroom reached its quota first and the pupils in Mrs. McKenna's freshman homeroom sold the highest percentage of their quota. The standings and percentage of quota reached were as follows: Mrs. McKenna, freshmen—135 per cent; Mr. Klock, junior—134 per cent; Miss McMurray, freshmen—105 per cent; Mr. Buckley, senior—101 per cent; Mr. Fersh, junior—92 per cent; Miss Post, sophomore—89 per cent; Mr. Roberge, freshman—60 per cent; and Mr. Cornwell, sophomore—24 per cent.

Edward Morris, a freshman, was the top salesman of the magazine drive. He will be a guest at the Army-North Carolina State football game at Michie Stadium, West Point, on Saturday. Others who will be the guests of the Student Council at the game will be Wayne Wilson, Fred Ott, Darrel Harp, Alyce Whalen, Carol Sherman and Gail McElree.

Robert Hicks was chairman of the drive, assisted by Fred Ott.

Halloween Party Is Rated Big Success

New Paltz, Nov. 5—The annual high school Halloween party was held in the school gym Friday afternoon. The party's first event was the costume contest. The winner for being the funniest was Francis Tantillo, senior, dressed in an Aunt Jemima costume. The one judged most original was Joyce Wagner, freshman, dressed as a Hawaiian dancer.

Next came dunking for apples. All contestants were individually timed, the winners having the lowest times. Tom Loughlin was the winner with 3/4 second; and Joyce DeGraff and Joyce Wagner were the winning girls with 1 1/2 seconds each. Marshmallows on a string, lifesavers on a straw, and the balloon bursting contest were the next events. Points were awarded to the class of which the winners in each contest are members—5 points for first place, and 3, 2 and 1 points for second, third and fourth places respectively. At the end of the balloon bursting contest the freshmen were in the lead by one point with the seniors running a close second, and the juniors third. The last event was musical chairs for which 10 points were awarded. Dominick Sfregola, junior, won this event and therefore made the junior class total highest.

The winning class, as a prize, was served refreshments first. The outcome, hence, was that the junior class received their refreshments first, followed by the freshmen, seniors, and sophomores in that order. Apples were also distributed to the pupils.

The Student Council sponsor of the program, was thanked by pupils and praised by faculty members for a job well done. Organizers of the party were Alice Murphy, Ellen Nerz, Tony Moriello, Florence Triolo, Walter Paradies, and Robert Hicks.

After the student's games were concluded, Walter Paradies, Student Council president, called all faculty members to the floor for a musical chairs contest. The student body agreed that this was the best event of the afternoon. Coach Johnson and Mr. Roberge finally tied for first place.

Council Officers

New Paltz, Nov. 5—Officers of the Student Council include Walter Paradies, president; Robert Hicks, vice-president; Alice Murphy, secretary; Fred Ott, treasurer. Joseph Hoffer, Anthony Moriello and Elizabeth DeGraff, senior representatives; Robert Cotton, Ellen Nerz and Florence Triolo, juniors; Frank Fredenburgh, Richard Caram and Elizabeth Murphy, sophomores; George Watts, Carolyn Hogan and Lorraine Ellis, freshmen. Miss Joan M. Aldous, guidance counselor, is the advisor.

Research for Play

New Paltz, Nov. 5—Seniors are doing research on costumes and furniture which were in vogue in 1800 in England. This activity is in preparation for the class play, Pride and Prejudice. Residents who have such material are asked to call 6211 and seniors will pick up the articles. Miss Ruth Post, English teacher, is directing the play.

Paltz Gridders Win

We Don't Find Peace When Possessive Jealousy's Around

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Neil's mother writes, "He's always been able to count on me. After his father died, we stayed together, although I had to put him in a day nursery while I worked."

This means that Neil's mother worked very hard to keep them together. It means that in his early childhood, day in day out, she rose, dressed herself and Neil, prepared their breakfasts, took him to the day nursery, and then went to work.

It means that at the end of the day, the routine was reversed, and there was also shopping to do, supper to be made and a child to put to bed. It means there were interminable evenings for the battles with physical exhaustion, discouragement and self-pity.

Now, at 14, accustomed to counting on his mother, Neil is shocked and angry that she wants to marry again.

"I suppose it's only natural for him to hate the idea," she writes. "Sometimes I think I'm not strong enough to go through with this marriage. Although I love this man, don't you think I should put him out of my life for the sake of peace?"

What I think is that possessive jealousy, whether it claims mothers who begrudge love to their sons or sons who begrudge it to their mothers, is an evil thing.

However, Neil's mother does not think so, or she would not have written for help. So, she must not act on my thoughts. We cannot deal firmly or kindly with possessive jealousy if we fear it or sympathize with it.

Just as its grip on a parent can make a child ashamed of her love for someone else, it can make Neil's mother ashamed of her love for the man who wants to marry her. Under such circumstances, love becomes something else.

As to peace, we don't get it by putting love out of our lives. For these three people, it will be gotten only by a united effort to put possessive jealousy out of their lives.

One day, not too distant, Neil will want for himself the kind of love he is denying his mother. Do we want him to marry his girl without self-reproach?

Do we want him to feel free to be a man as well as a son? What kind of example in growth are we giving him by refusing to grow ourselves? Isn't his chance to begin to open this closed corporation of mother and son to take in others?

Neil will believe in the goodness of our marriage if we do. If we really want to marry as much as we think we do, we and our boy can look forward to quite a time working out that peace from possessive jealousy.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

Listen readers, we've got to do some straight thinking. We have got to get out of the rut of "sameness of thought."

Paradoxically, straight thinking means contrary ruminating. It means standing back and taking a good, hard look at where we've been, where we're at, and where we're going.

The main thing we've got to do is to throw out of our minds the glib assurances and running excuses for past sins of others which have become our daily diet of news.

Let's start right off by a quick look at where we've been. We'll divide the review categorically into two fields: Socio-politics and Economics.

For the meatiest digest of the recent-past international blunders that will plague us for years to come I urge you to send to the Caxton Printers, Ltd. of Caldwell, Idaho, for a copy of Felix Wittmer's hundred-page, documented story of our dealings with Russia. (It only costs $1.25).

Titled "The Yalta Betrayal," you will find in this small book not the author's opinions, but a running account of the duplicities and unfathomable dealings that have left us with problems requiring a generation to unravel. You will find, to your surprise, how much you have forgotten that occurred in those fateful years that led up to where we are. The sobering truth is, of course, that we don't know where we are, because we cannot get at the core of the trouble.

You will understand, when you review the recent past, why it is that there is no early solution to world problems. You will sadly accept the fact that if we did not get worked up then ("het up," as they say in Vermont) it is understandable how little worked up we get now, when such atrocity stories as last week's revelations from the Korean war appear in our newspapers. Talk about becoming "hardened to realities," we have become spiritually callous.

As a subscriber wrote me a week ago, in a wonderfully discerning letter, "physically and materially mankind has advanced far over the centuries. Spiritually we are still hanging by our tails."

Further, my helpful correspondent left us with this contrary observation which is worth ruminating over thoughtfully: "A long time ago I came to the conclusion that for the human race as a whole peace so-called was an unnatural state. . . . It seems to me that history teaches us that periods of so-called peace were simply periods when some nation had the power to wage successful war but did not exercise it. In a rather clumsy way I am trying to say that a contrarian would conclude that peace is simply force not applied."

Now turning to economics, we can sum up the recent past briefly. A war- and fear-of-war, stimulated boom.

Where we are now at, is not too difficult to enumerate, it seems to me.

We are floundering helplessly against unknown conditions, and unforeseeable probabilities. Don't blame the politicians for having "no definite policy." You can't establish policies when you cannot reliably estimate either conditions or probabilities.

From the time of last year's political campaigns to the present the Ruminator has contrarily looked upon the situation cynically (but, I believe, correctly). There was no probability of important changes, except in the labels. A Republican New Deal was all we could logically expect; as anything drastically different would mean political suicide and economic chaos. Not being an Eisenhower enthusiast a year ago, I escape disappointment today. (An interesting item of value in the contrary approach!)

So—from dead center (which might be a correct definition of where we are now) where are we going?

It seems evident that we have yet to pay for the mistakes of the past. But, what is discouraging at the moment, is the tendency for those in the seats of power to remain on the defensive and fail to boldly face the future. We are told over and over that "it will take us a long time to undo what has been done in the past 20 years." Contrarily, what has been done—the trend that has been established—just ain't going to be reversed. That is what we should face up to, and what we leaders should accept. We have got to strengthen the rotten foundations; not tear them out, so the house falls down. We can't start over, but we can make a fresh start with what we've got.

High School Risks Perfect Record Against Lawrence Saturday

Maroon Expects Rugged Battle With Islanders

Coach Bill Burke might profit by hanging up a warning sign in the Kingston High School football locker room:

"Beware of Long Island teams with 'poor' records!"

Another of those allegedly sub-par island elevens is heading for Kingston, with a Saturday 2 p. m. date with the Maroons at municipal stadium.

Big, tough and rugged Lawrence High's record reads one win, four losses. But don't let anybody try to kid Coach Burke about those statistics.

Coming On Fast

He knows the Golden Tornadoes have been coming on fast in the last three games and at the moment are rated as a par with any school in their district.

Their latest outing resulted in a 26-0 crusher over a good Glen Cove squad. Earlier they had absorbed four straight setbacks. Mineola High, whipped them 15-0 in the opener. Then followed Sewanhaka High, 13-6; Freeport, 14-6, in the last minute and Met-ham High, 25-19.

That was Coach Larry Ciamolli's "old" team. The new one will be on display tomorrow at the stadium headed by left halfback Tom Andriano, who runs in spectacular style from the tailback in the single wing offense of the Tornadoes.

Andriano is co-captain with Daniel Perrino, the right guard. Nine of Coach Ciamolli's probable starters are of Italian ancestry. The Lawrence speedsters are rated among the best backs in the metropolitan district.

Seven Seniors Start

Lawrence's starting array will have seven seniors two sophs and two juniors. The club compiled a 4-4 record in 1952, got off to a poor start this year but appears to have righted itself for the final phase of the season.

Situated in a heavy Italian area of Long Island, Lawrence High has a student population of 1160 boys and girls.

The coach who played varsity football at Lebanon Valley is now in his fifth year as mentor for the Tornadoes. He also played several years of minor league baseball.

Warning Is There

If Coach Burke needed any precedent to be wary of Lawrence High, the scores of the Curtis High and Valley Stream games could supply the necessary jolt.

Curtis wasn't supposed to have much except Johnny Klumbach, a brilliant halfback, but they ran up three TDs, on passes, to be sure, for the highest point total registered against Kingston this year.

It was the same story at Valley Stream, a supposedly weak team. Kingston had to struggle for a 7-6 victory, although the statistics made out an impressive story for the locals. But they still pay off at the goal line and Bill Burke must have impressed that upon his Maroon a thousand times this week.

Young-Giuliani Bout Tonight's TV Clash

New York, Nov. 6 (P)—Paddy Young gets a screen test for a proposed Dec. 9 Cleveland bout with Gil Turner tonight at St. Nicholas Arena when he meets Sammy Giuliani, of Stamford, Conn.

Since losing to Bobo Olson, June 19, in an American middleweight bout, Paddy has been on a four-and-a-half month "vacation." He is a 4 to 1 favorite in the 10-round match, scheduled for 10 p. m. (EST) with network radio (ABC) and television (NBC) coverage.

Oakland, Calif.—Billy Peacock, 117, Los Angeles, stopped Johnny Ortega, 113, Alameda, Calif., 9, Dick, a tackle, is team captain; also captured the golf squad this year and is president of the Senior class.

Hoople, Flushed With Upsets, Picks Maroon Over Lawrence

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE
(All-Time Upset Champ)

Egad! The wolves have been routed!

The chattering jackals have been silenced! Your humble gridiron prognosticator has crammed their words down their throats!

(Editor's Note: I wish he'd hurry up and tell us what he's talking about!)

My millions of loyal readers know what I'm exulting about. It is those few who raised their voices in howls of derision when I picked Purdue to beat Michigan State toward whom this essay is aimed!

And didn't I, after careful calculation of the Zlobotny cosmic theory, predict the exact point total for Poughkeepsie High against Middletown (33)?

Yes, folks! Hoople has come through again with the upset of the season. And I think I deserve a small accolade, because one has to have courage to announce these form reversals in the face of experts who are always ready to carp.

Picked Penn, Too

Another dandy I gave you the same day was Penn to defeat Navy, and this, too, came through just as predicted.

This week I have selected Ohio State to duplicate Purdue's victory over the Spartans; Missouri over Oklahoma and Washington to nose out California by a touchdown. Those are my specials.

I have word from Kingston, N. Y., where my good friend, Bill Burke, is trying to keep his Maroons away from that snare and illusion of the Lawrence High record. I have it on good authority that Bill has the boys in the proper frame of mind and I am picking them 13-7.

Here is the rest of my scintillating forecast:

Cornell 14, Dartmouth 7
Syracuse 13, Cornell 7
Navy 20, Duke 13
Harvard 14, Princeton 13
Notre Dame 20, Penn 13
Penn State 28, Fordham 13
Illinois 27, Michigan 14
Minnesota 20, Indiana 7
Iowa State 20, Nebraska 14

Kansas 13, Kansas State 0
Ohio State 20, Mich. State 13
Missouri 21, Oklahoma 20

Rice 28, Arkansas 21
Baylor 20, Texas 14

Model Held After Man Friend Is Shot

Roslyn, N. Y., Nov. 6 (AP)—A 33-year-old model was booked early today on a first degree manslaughter charge following the fatal shooting of a man friend as the couple sat in a parked car.

Police said Louis Hunt, 33, was shot through the heart with a .32-caliber revolver during an argument with Mary E. Cunningham.

Both Hunt and the Cunningham woman were married but estranged from their mates. Hunt was the father of five children and the woman reportedly has a 14-year-old son, living with relatives in Buffalo, N. Y.

Shortly after midnight (EST) the couple were sitting in Mrs. Cunningham's car parked at the Roslyn Heights railroad station, when the shooting took place.

Police said Mrs. Cunningham leaped from the car, found a policeman and told him: "My boy friend has been shot. Take him to a hospital."

Argued Over Wife
Police quoted Mrs. Cunningham as saying they had been arguing about Hunt's frequent visits to his estranged wife, said to reside in Chester, Pa., where Hunt's father operates a funeral home.

Mrs. Cunningham said the gun fell to the floor of the car and "went off." There was no immediate explanation concerning the presence of the gun, which the woman said belonged to Hunt.

Mrs. Cunningham occupied the same house with her husband, Albert, in Mineola (89 Roosevelt Pl.) but she said each had separate quarters.

Hunt had been employed by the Republic Aircraft Corp. in Farmingdale, N. Y.

Police said Mrs. Cunningham and Hunt frequently were seen at Hunt's apartment in Roslyn. The landlord at the apartment described the pair as being of "Spanish ancestry."

Mrs. Cunningham said she modeled for hair, cigarette and chewing gum advertisements which appeared mostly in South American publications.

Police Say Two Confess
Los Angeles, Nov. 6 (AP)—Police said two young men critically wounded in an exchange of gunfire in downtown Hollywood have told of a three-month career of forgery, burglary and robbery in New York state. Det. L. C. C. Forbes said last night that Harold La Verne Riddle, 25, and Stewart Cogovan, 21, both of Lockport, N. Y., admitted crimes "enough to send them up for a long time." Riddle was shot in the chest and is in critical condition after a four-hour operation for removal of the bullet. Cogovan was shot in the neck and his condition is less serious.

Will Loan Warships
Pusan, Korea, Nov. 6 (AP)—The chief of South Korea's navy said today the United States will loan additional warships, including destroyers, to South Korea for "fighting communism more effectively." U. S. naval officials in Tokyo refused to comment. Vice Adm. Pak Ok Kyoo told a news conference ship maintenance facilities in South Korea are to be substantially increased to handle the new warships. Pak refused to say how many he expects or when.

President Ends

tion is properly safeguarded, the National Security Council will conduct a continuing review of the order.

The review procedure also calls for a continuing study within federal departments and agencies.

The Eisenhower order sorts federal departments and agencies into three groups:

1. The 28 with no power to put a security label on official information, although they may request agencies with classification power to do it for them in "exceptional cases."

2. The 17 in which only the agency heads have such power but can not delegate it to subordinates.

3. All the other departments—such as the State, Justice, Defense, Treasury and Commerce Departments and the Central Intelligence Agency—which may impose security classifications through subordinates delegated by the agency heads.

Brownell said those authorized to classify information will be working with much more precise guides than was the case under the Truman order.

Brownell told newsmen he recommended abandoning the "restricted" label because some government officials had used it "when they didn't have any reason to classify (information) but wanted to keep it from the public."

The attorney general said the basic thing about the new order is the spirit of it. He said Eisenhower has "a very great personal interest" in it, and added:

"The old order was repressive and applied the military formula to a lot of things entirely outside the scope of national defense."

As Pegler Sees It

sition of Dr. Wedel and Dr. Stuckey should have been on guard.

Other events indicate that the long, trying campaign to destroy this graceless mountebank's power of intimidation is beginning to show results, even in papers which perversely continue to print him.

The Arkansas City, Kan., Daily Traveler, like the Wichita Eagle, a Pearson client, said in an editorial on Sept. 28.

"A problem of some magnitude faces the nation's press today. It concerns the publishing of fact and propaganda. How is an editor to know when a reporter or columnist is smearing and belittling an enemy when the sources of the facts lie miles from the newspaper office? Because certain columns are printed and later found to carry unfounded stories, the press suffers. If there is dignity within the newspaper profession, it is soon lost through the publishing of undignified writers."

"Followers of Drew Pearson are advised to tread cautiously before they accept all his stories as fact. Because Pearson has left the beaten journalistic path to settle personal disputes, he has lost newspaper clients. He is a poor example of journalism. Once he gets down on a fellowman, he resorts to methods of revenge that reflect nothing but low character."

On October 21, the Traveler said Pearson without substantiation had charged a southern rancher with smuggling and said:

"We haven't dropped the columnist although such a proposition has merit."

There was a young man in our town who was a doctor wise. He knew Ford Dealer used car lots are full of A-1 buys.

He took his pick (the choice was great) and said with proud elation: There's nothing like a good used car that's backed by reputation.

Mother Goose gives you Used Car advice

Little Jack Horner noticed one corner had more used cars than the rest. "They're the cars that we take in on sales we are makin'!" his Ford Dealer told him with zest.

Jack and Jill went up the hill to their Ford Dealer's lot, sir. They shop there 'cause they know: where you buy proves what you bought, sir.

Hiltebrant Launches Navy Minesweeper

Launching operations that went off without a flaw sent this U. S. Navy Department AM 431 into the Rondout Creek, Thursday at 12:19 p. m., from the dock of the C. Hiltebrant Drydock Company, South Rondout. This second minesweeper, built by the local concern, was christened by Mrs. S. D. Hiltebrant, who received a giant bouquet of red roses from the 500 employees, after she broke a bottle of champagne over the bow. As the craft went into the creek, stern first, experienced boat-builders called the launching perfect, as supervised by Major O. R. Hiltebrant, president of the firm. A party was held at Broglio's, West Park, for 200 navy personnel, Hiltebrant officials and friends. (Freeman photo)
